Teaching With Style Seminar

When asked by students what the number one thing they would change about their teachers would be, without fail they answered that their teachers needed to be less boring. Teachers don't want to bore their students, but it can happen so easily when their principals, personality, and methodology are not empowered by Teaching With Style.

Teaching With Style will identify and illustrate universal characteristics of style such as creativity, humor, and conviction from a Biblical perspective. Participants will learn among other things how to think on their feet, overcome fear, and listen to their students. They will also discover that their external style is ultimately determined by their internal convictions.

The goal of Teaching With Style is to help godly communicators communicate like God. After all, isn't he the one that used a rainbow, a burning bush, a flood, and countless parables and illustrations in the New Testament? God is never dull or boring - just the opposite! Is it too much of a stretch to say that Christians should pattern their communication after Him?
